PEOPLE YOU KNOW.

Prominent Irish Americans Who Are Leaders in Their Respective Callings and a Credit As Citizens to the City of Louisville.

JOSEPH DOUGHERTY.

One of the leading retail coal merchants who has come to the front in the past few years is Joseph Dougherty, who has offices on West Broadway. He has branched out so that he is now prepared to supply the entire city with coal if given the proper notice. He is active in Hibernian circles and in all movements for the promotion of charity and good will among men.

DR. THOMAS H. MULVEY.

One of the rising young men in the medical profession in Louisville is Dr. Thomas H. Mulvey, who has an office at Twelfth and Delaware streets. Dr. Mulvey, although only recently established in his profession, has built up a large practice. He is an active member of the Ancient Order of Hibernians and takes a deep interest in its cause. There is a bright future before him.

WILLIAM RUEFF.

There are many popular men in the brewing trade, but none more so than Will Rueff, who is the local agent and collector for the Oertel Brewing Company. Mr. Rueff circulates all over the city, and wherever he goes he makes friends on account of his affability and good nature. The Oertel Brewing Company is fortunate in having a man of his class in their service.

JAMES L. HACKETT.

One of the most popular men in the wholesale liquor business in Louisville is James L. Hackett, proprietor of the Greenbrier Distilling Company. He was long connected with William Collins in the same line of business. James Hackett is identified with the best interests of the city and State. He is also active in church and charity work and is a liberal contributor whenever called upon.

CHARLES O'CONNOR

is a chip off the old block. His father, James O'Connor, was for many years the leading coal dealer in Louisville and was held in the highest esteem. Since his death Mr. O'Connor has successfully managed the business of the O'Neil Coal and Coke Company in Louisville and has steadily increased its business. Mr. O'Connor is District Deputy of Kentucky of the Knights of Columbus, and is active in promoting the affairs of the order. He is a wide awake business man and besides an agreeable gentleman.

MATT WINN.

It looks like Matt Winn succeeds in everything he undertakes. As a merchant tailor he has built up a business which is the envy of his competitors. Mr. Winn works hard himself and sees that his patrons are well served. His only recreation is "looking at the ponies" when they run at the New Jockey Club grounds. Mr. Winn is Vice President of the Association under Mayor Charles F. Grainger, who is President. Mr. Winn takes deep in the Knights of Columbus.

MARTIN CUSICK.

One of the most popular Irish-Americans in Louisville and one who takes a deep interest in club and society affairs is Martin Cusick. Mr. Cusick has been engaged in the tailoring business for many years and is one of the most artistic artists in the city. He is with John M. Borntraeger, Jefferson street, near Fourth. Mr. Cusick is a leading Hibernian and a true blue Irishman.

CHARLES CRUSH.

There is no more popular business man in Louisville than Charles Crush, manager of the Pacific Coal Company. Mr. Crush is out early and late serving his patrons, and his business is constantly increasing. He is a liberal advertiser, and knows how to keep his trade going. The wholesale coal men have a valuable representative in Mr. Crush, who is constantly on the alert.

PATRICK REGAN.

No man in Louisville has had greater experience in the ice business than Patrick Regan. He has been in the business all of his adult life. Everybody knows "Regan, the Ice King," as his friends like to call him. Although a king, Mr. Regan does not put on any style. He is out every morning on one of his wagons, except on Sundays, and he won't work on Sunday, observing that six days is enough for any man to work. He runs numerous wagons to supply his many customers, and his business is constantly increasing. Regan is not in the trust.

AUGUSTUS J. BIZOT

is one of the rising young attorneys of Louisville. He came here only a short time ago and after his graduation at the law school at once entered into practice. He has been very successful. He has twice been elected to the Council, and recently received the important appointment of Auditor's Agent in Louisville, succeeding Mr. Will L. Weller. Mr. Bizot's parents still live in New Albany, and are members of a pioneer French Catholic family.

WILLIAM CONNELLY

is coming to be one of the leading furniture dealers in Louisville. His neat store rooms at Seventh and Oak streets are always crowded. Mr. Connelly was formerly on Main street, and knows the furniture business from the ground up. Will is a live member of the Dominican parish and is always active in any work undertaken by that large congregation.

EDWARD DALTON.

Ed Dalton is one of the Democratic leaders in his ward and stands very close to the city administration. He can have almost anything he asks for. Mr. Dalton has been very successful in business. Recently he has taken into partnership with him Tom Camfield, also a very popular gentleman, and their place at Floyd and Main is very popular. Mr. Dalton, though in the liquor business for years, is a total abstainer. He is the City Inspector of gasoline lamps.

WILLIAM OSBORNE.

Much of the success of the big Ahrens & Ott Manufacturing Company is due to the mechanical skill of William Osborne, who looks after the enameling of the bath tubs and wash stands turned out by this concern. Mr. Osborne is at the head of his profession in the line he supervises, and has made several inventions. During his residence in Louisville he has made many friends.

D. X. MURPHY.

who was selected by the Trustees of the Louisville Free Public Library as one of the local architects to make competitive plans for the new library to be erected here, is one of the leading architects of Kentucky. His work bears inspection. Mr. Murphy is the architect of the county jail which is now being erected. It is hoped that the library trustees will see their way clear to select a home architect to build the library, and that Mr. Murphy's plans may be the ones adopted. The building is to cost about $230,000, and work will begin this summer.

COL. MIKE MULDOON

has crossed the Atlantic thirty-two times since he first landed in America over fifty-five years ago. These trips were made mostly to Italy on business connected with his large monument works. While in Italy Col. Muldoon learned to speak Italian fluently and this has been of great benefit to him in his business career. Col. Muldoon, who is now sixty-eight years of age, is one of the best preserved men for his years in Louisville. He has led a temperate life, is always cheerful and has many friends as any man in Kentucky. He is a true blue Irishman of the old school, always ready to help a fellow-countryman in need.

COL. JOHN M'ATEER

has been a very busy man this fall and winter as usual. First he served on the Board of Equalization of City Taxes and afterward on the County Board of Valuation and Appraisal. Mr. McAteer is an expert in this line of work and his services to the city and county are invaluable. He is one of the best known Irishmen in Louisville and has often been honored by his fellow citizens. At one time he was President of the Council and was instrumental in passing much wholesome legislation in the early days.

CAPT. JAMES T. DUFFY, the well known coal boatman, has been very successful in the sand and gravel business since he retired from the management of the Monongahela Coal Company's business in Louisville. Capt. Duffy is successful in all that he undertakes, for he works hard and looks closely after his business. Capt. Duffy, in conjunction with Paul Barth and others, owns sand diggers and boats for handling gravel and sand with a capacity sufficient to supply the entire city.

BARNEY CAMPBELL

announced some time ago that he would now take a rest and let his boys manage his business, since he had been plastering around for over fifty years. For a retired capitalist Barney is the busiest man in Louisville. He is out at 7 o'clock in the morning and covers more territory than any man of his years in Louisville. Mr. Campbell has been very successful in the manufacture of a patent wall plaster, and has a large factory on the river front. He says that he does not work hard any more, but if he is not a hard worker there are none in Louisville.

DIGNAN-M'CABE.

Two hustlers in the freight soliciting business in Louisville are John Dignan, with the Louisville & Nashville, and Thomas P. McCabe, with the Illinois Central. They hold similar positions with their respective companies. Both are popular and bring a large share of business to the roads they represent. Mr. Dignan was formerly coal agent for the Louisville & Nashville, but when that company abandoned the retail trade in Louisville he became soliciting freight agent. Mr. McCabe was first with the Louisville & Cincinnati Packet Company, but he has been with the Illinois Central for many years.

EDWARD J. O'BRIEN,

the well known leaf tobacco dealer, is one of the most successful business men on Main street, and is looked upon as an authority in the tobacco business by leaders in the trade in all parts of the United States and even in Europe. Mr. O'Brien has been honored by his associates in the trade in being elected President of the Tobacco Dealers' Association on several occasions. Mr. O'Brien takes a leading part in all Catholic movements. He is particularly interested in the charity work carried on by the St. Vincent de Paul Society.

PATRICK BANNON,

at the age of eighty-one, holds on well to his health and all his faculties. Although this has been a severe winter Mr. Bannon has been at his office constantly and expects to live to celebrate many St. Patrick's day anniversaries. Mr. Bannon is now the oldest manufacturer in Louisville in point of continuous service. He commenced the manufacture of terra cotta over fifty years ago and was a pioneer in the manufacture of vitrified brick.

THREE GOOD ONES.

Mark Ryan, Frank Adams and Frank Dacher are all popular clerks in the Circuit courts and their friends are legion. They are not only popular with the court officials, but on account of their uniform courtesy to the public have made themselves general favorites. They believe that a public office is a public trust and act accordingly.
